Uyuni Salt Flats

You are standing on a never-ending mirror. Looking up you see blue sky, fluffy white clouds and bright sunshine. Glancing down you see everything perfectly reflected below your feet. You have nothing around you except endless sky. This may sound like some kind of dream, but in a mountainous region of South America 'the world's largest mirror' actually 1) .......

The Uyuni Salt Flats are in the south-west of Bolivia. An enormous white desert, the flats formed when ancient lakes dried up and left only salt behind. The Incahuasi island, a huge mound of cactus and coral in the centre of the flats, reminds us of what was 2) ...... here. In the dry season, the salt is hard and cracked, but the rainy season is unlike anything else, as a thin layer of water sits on top of the salt, creating a magical mirror effect. The salt flats are 3,500 metres above sea level and cover over 10,000 square kilometres – you can even see them from space! In fact, NASA uses this large flat surface to check the location of its satellites

Exploring the Flats

Travel by plane or bus to the city of Uyuni if you want to experience this natural wonder. The flats are huge, so it's best to discover them by 3) ...... a Jeep tour. On these 4-day adventures be prepared – the sun's rays are very powerful and can be harmful when they're reflecting off the white ground, so you need sunglasses and sunscreen during the day. At night, there is an enormous drop in temperature. It can get below freezing point, so warm clothes are also a must.

While out in the Jeeps, don't expect to buy souvenirs as there are certainly no shops here. Addicted to your smartphone? If so, post an update before you go, because there's no Wi-Fi or phone signal for the entire trip. Even electricity is only available for a few hours each night because the lodges you sleep in 4) ...... on small solar panels.

⊠ y f P Hey guys! You'll never guess where I've been - the Uyuni Salt Flats in Bolivia! It was an amazing experience and I learned a lot. Our tour guide explained that the flats were formed when ancient 1) ...... dried up, leaving only salt behind. When it rains, a layer of water sits on top of the salt and creates a 2) ...... effect - it's really unusual and magical! As you know, I'm 3) ......to my smartphone and I really wanted to post some pictures while I was there, but of course there was no Internet connection! The 4) ...... we stayed in were powered by solar panels, and the hotel we stayed in at the end of our trip was environmentally friendly and in perfect 5) ...... with nature. In a way I'm glad that I couldn't go online because I appreciated the natural 6) ...... of the flats even more. I definitely recommend this tour if you ever get the chance! Until next time, Comment Naomi

For years, visitors to this region have been comparing the landscape 5) ...... an alien planet. The landscape seems to stretch endlessly, and you can travel miles without seeing any sign of life. As you make your way south on the flats, the Laguna Colorada, or 'Red Lagoon', certainly grabs your attention. Unlike the white salt all around you, it's bright red because of its colourful algae. Many beautiful flamingos build their nests here; their pink colour comes from eating the red algae. If you head even further south, there is also the mineral Laguna Verde (also known as 'Green Lagoon') in the Eduardo Avaroa National Park.

Accommodation

After that journey you're going to need a good night's sleep. Luckily, on the edge of the salt flats is the world's first salt hotel, built with bricks made from salt. The hotel is in harmony with nature, and the 6) ..... natural material available here is – you guessed it – salt!

The Uyuni Salt Flats have been thrilling visitors for generations. People have been trying to capture the size and wonder of this unique place in photographs, but most agree it's a place that you can only truly experience by being there.

10 *** Read the article and for questions 1-4 choose the best answer, A, B, C or D.

- 1 According to the writer, what makes the salt flats unique is
  - A that they are 3,500 m above sea level.
  - B that there are ancient lakes there.
  - c that NASA tests its satellites over this area.
  - D the way the ground looks like a mirror.
- What is it important to be ready for when travelling to the salt flats?
  - A There is no electricity available.
  - B You can only sleep a few hours each night.
  - C There are extreme weather conditions.
  - D You spend many hours in a Jeep.
- 3 Many people compare the landscape to an alien planet because
  - A there are algae living in the water of the lakes.
  - B there is salt all around you in every direction.
  - c there are no living things in very large areas of land.
  - D there are brightly coloured lagoons in the region.
- 4 The hotel is special because
  - A it is part of nature.
  - B they built it with an unusual building material.

c it's on the edge of the salt flats.
